

Python is a high-level, general-purpose programming language that is used for a variety of tasks, including software and app development, website design, and automating repetitive tasks. It is known for being easy to read and learn, and is often recommended as a first programming language.

